I've never seen a man put his hand on another man's lower back/waist when trying to move past in a crowd so please stop doing it to women.

Equating heartbeat and personhood is the epitome of privileging emotion over science. You've been seduced by metaphor.

The heart's a pump. Humanity lives in the brain. Organs fail, but we're not dead until our brainwaves are gone.

Humanlike fetal brainwaves begin at 24 weeks.

You can hear a baby's heartbeat in the first weeks. It was the sweetest sound I ever heard in my life. If your opinion is that abortion should be legal, fine, argue that, but don't say there's no scientific basis for the argument against abortion.

"You've been seduced by a metaphor." Is such a great way to put it. Those lawmakers and clinicians want you to believe that the "heartbeat" you're hearing is proof of personhood living inside you. That really isn't scientifically the case. That "heartbeat" is just electrical impulses in a clump of cells, it's not actually a heartbeat. Lets not forget that life is measured by brain function, not heartbeat, so even if it were the case, that fetus still wouldn't be technically alive until around 24 weeks. Around 92 percent of abortions happen at or before 13 weeks gestation (according to the CDC). So if you find yourself seeking abortion in the future, don't let yourself be seduced by the metaphor. Its your body, and your choice.

Asexual and Aromantic People aren't choosing to be celibate/ virgin.

Just because Romantic and Sexual needs are viewed as essential for most people doesn't mean it has to be a need for everyone.

Some people just do not have the same needs.

And that's fine.

If you happen to feel that way, remember that it's ok.
You should never feel forced to do everything other people do. Be happy and enjoy the things you enjoy ❤

As always, queerness is a spectrum. Most people don't fit 100% in one category or the opposite. We all have different needs, some people may be closer to the ace/ aro spectrum some may be further away. You don't need to fit a category to be valid ❤

Being Ace/Aro is not a choice..

Some people just do not have the same needs. And that's fine. If you happen to feel that way, remember that it's ok. You should never feel forced to do everything other people do. Be happy and enjoy the things you enjoy ❤

TIPS WHEN STRUGGLING WITH UNCERTAINTY

Take a moment to pause and breathe.
Allow yourself to collect your thoughts.

Become an observer to yourself. Notice any discomfort within you.

Ask yourself "what is it that I need in this moment right now?"

Show yourself compassion and kindness. Applaud your self soothing.

The Humankindist

@Humankindist

A man's consent is equally as important as a woman's consent. No means no, regardless of gender. If a woman says no, it means no. If a man says no, it means no. Can we end the ideal that men are supposed to keep quiet and 'enjoy/want' it?

Spanking is domestic violence just as surely as hitting a spouse is domestic violence.

The only difference is that a child can't fight back, can't leave, can't call 911 for protection, and can't vote to make domestic violence laws apply to minors. Children are voiceless and powerless. We can change that by lending them our voices and by using our collective power to protect them.

I'm in. Are you?

AHMAUD ARBERY

On the afternoon of February 23, 2020,
Ahmaud Arbery was out jogging.

At one point, he entered the Satilla Shores neighborhood where he was spotted by local resident, Gregory McMichael.

McMichael said that he thought Ahmaud looked like a man suspected in several break-ins in the area. The police state there had been only one recent theft from an unlocked car in the neighborhood.

McMichael called his son Travis, they then armed themselves with a .357 Magnum handgun and a shotgun and pursued Ahmaud in a pickup truck through the neighborhood.

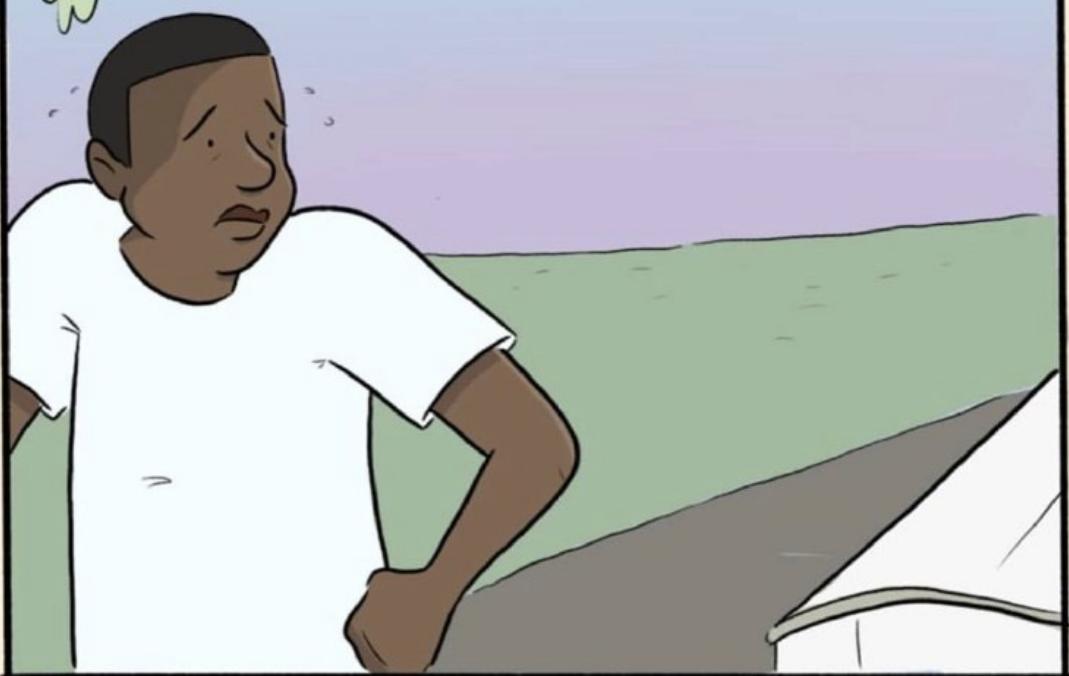

A neighbor, William Bryan, also joined the pursuit.

After a brief chase, the McMichaels pulled up in front of Ahmaud. Gregory McMichaels shouted "stop, stop, we want to talk to you".

Ahmaud attempted to run around the truck,

Ahmaud, unarmed, was shot three times and killed in the street.

One year ago we lost Ahmaud Arbery after he was fatally shot while he was out on a jog. One whole year. Rest In Peace Ahmaud.
